The coffeehouse culture of Baghdad (Arabic: ثقافة المقهي البغدادية) is a set of traditions and social behaviors in old, local, or traditional Baghdadi coffeehouses in Baghdad, Iraq. Ever since their inception in the 1500s, cafés have acted as social forums and gathering grounds for friends and meetings for all ages as well as a gathering ground for intellectuals, thinkers, and personalities to discuss politics, art, literature, science, poetry, and other subjects that had a great impact on Iraq's cultural and literary life while consuming tea or coffee.

Cultural Baghdadi coffeehouses have been thriving since their demands grew in the 17th century and continued into the 20th century, especially in al-Rashid Street, which saw many of these coffeehouses materialize along the street and the city...

Baito keigo (Japanese: バイト敬語), is a controversial form of honorifics (keigo) in the Japanese language taught via employee training manuals, especially to young part-timers (パート) at fast-food restaurants and convenience stores. Baito keigo incorporates nonstandard formulas for servers and cashiers to use when addressing customers, commonly longer and vaguer than the standard expression in an attempt to increase the level of politeness and avoid offense. Baito keigo is opposed by language purists on the grounds that their use frequently leads to grammatically incorrect or illogical constructions.

Alternate terms include "manual keigo," "convenience-store keigo," and "family-restaurant keigo."
