Zimbabwe's land reform has been intensely controversial. Yet debate has been plagued by bias and misinformation. This book aims to offer a more considered discussion, rooted in field-based, empirical research carried out over 13 years since the 2000 land reform. The 60 chapters of this book originally appeared on the ZimbabweLand blog (www.zimbabweland.wordpress.com). They are organised in eight thematic sections, each introduced with a short overview essay. These cover agricultural and livestock production, the economy, political dimensions, land, livelihoods and rural development, aid and development, comparative lessons and researching land and agrarian change. As Zimbabwe looks to the future, the challenges of agriculture and rural development are pressing. The reflections in this book provide pointers to the way forward.

The good use of compact spaces and the appeal of quality design have always caught Don and Marilyn Jessen’s imagination, and their travels have connected them with a wide variety of people at the forefront of the ‘tinies’ and ‘teardrops’ movement. It took 3000 miles and six million steps for a South African grandmother to become the first woman ever to run across America. She made history and fulfilled a dream. That crowning moment, however, did not come easy. By her own admission, she had no personality, no guts and no backbone. Her rise from "whispering hope with no hope at all" to that triumphant finish proves once more that success is available to all who are willing to pay the price and will accept that "there are no limits other than those we impose on ourselves." When she started her athletics career at the late age of 37, it set her free to become "the greatest woman long distance runner there has ever been." She set new records over distances supposedly impossible for her gender. Other women soon followed her example, inspired by her pluck and passion. And at 87 she is still running competitively. To her, age is but a state of mind: "You're only old when you stop growing." Her one overriding goal: to stay fit till her dying day, a day she wants to approach running.

Jane Yolen, the bestselling and award-winning author of The Devil's Arithmetic, returns to World War II and the Holocaust with this timely and necessary novel. It's 1942 in Poland, and the world is coming to pieces. At least that's how it seems to Chaim and Gittel, twins whose lives feel like a fairy tale torn apart, with evil witches, forbidden forests, and dangerous ovens looming on the horizon. But in all darkness there is light, and the twins find it through Chaim's poetry and the love they have for each other. Like the bright flame of a Yahrzeit candle, his words become a beacon of memory so that the children and grandchildren of survivors will never forget the atrocities that happened during the Holocaust. Filled with brutality and despair, this is also a story of poetry and strength, in which a brother and sister lose everything but each other. Nearly thirty years after the publication of her award-winning and bestselling The Devil's Arithmetic and Briar Rose, Yolen once again returns to World War II and captivates her readers with the authenticity and power of her words. Perfect for fans of Markus Zusak's The Book Thief and Ruta Sepetys's Salt to the Sea.
